Introduction :

Lui Seng Chun is an old Chinese shophouse (tong lau) originally owned by a renowned businessman Mr Lui. Designed and built by architect W.H.Bourne, the building was completed in 1931. It became vacant in the 1970s after the Lui's family moved out.

In 2000, the Antiquities Advisory Board designated Lui Seng Chun a Grade I historic building. It was included in Batch I of the "Revitalising Historic Buildings Through Partnership Scheme" initiated by the Government in 2008. Hong Kong Baptist University was selected to conserve the building and convert it into a Chinese medicine healthcare centre. The revitalization work was completed in 2012.

In terms of heritage conservation, every effort was made to retain the original architectural features as far as possible. Necessary alterations and addition works were carried out in compliance with modern buildings and fire regulations as well as meeting the operational needs of the clinic.

In the process, the University adhered to the basic principle of minimizing impact of the alterations while ensuring that all alterations could be reversed if necessary. The project, with a view to conserving the heritage and architectural merits of Lui Seng Chun, has now turned the building into a unique historical and cultural landmark.
